

VIRGINIA DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

TWO-DAY LAB SAFETY SHORT COURSE

Conducted by The Laboratory Safety Institute

Introduction

The Laboratory Safety Institute is a non-profit organization whose mission is to make health and safety an integral and important part of science education, work, and life.

LSI was founded in 1978 by James A. Kaufman, Ph.D. His experience working for the Dow Chemical Company convinced him that schools and colleges were not doing enough to encourage health and safety. Studies by LSI and others have shown the accident rate at schools and colleges to be 100 to 1000 times that of Dow and DuPont.

Since 1978, Jim has trained over 100,000 science educators and scientists. His brand of safety training is a unique blend of technical information, practical and inexpensive solutions, humor, and accounts of real-life incidents.

Course Outline and Learning Outcomes

Participants will receive a broad, comprehensive exposure to safety, health and environmental requirements in the healthcare setting. They will be introduced to fundamental lab safety program requirements, the framework of an effective and comprehensive safety program, and receive an introduction to specific workplace hazards, prudent practices and methods for risk assessment. Upon completion of this course participants will be able to apply this knowledge to healthcare workplace settings they may encounter.
