

THE BEST CHOICE FOR VIRGINIA EDUCATORS

Scholastic Reading Inventory (SRI) was developed to track students' growth in reading comprehension over time and to report their achievement on the Lexile Framework® for Reading. SRI helps educators understand early in the school year the level of growth each student needs to meet year-end goals.

In 2008, the Virginia Department of Education, in conjunction with MetaMetrics, Inc., aligned the Virginia Standards of Learning (SOL) Assessments to the Lexile Framework. Educators using SRI have tools to forecast end-of-year outcomes on this high-stakes test. Understanding the relationship between the two scales can help schools maintain or improve achievement.

Now, Virginia educators have tools to determine which students are on track for achievement and which students require intervention to meet Virginia Language Arts standards.

VIRGINIA SOL CORRELATIONS TO LEXILE® MEASURES

12	At or Below 1145L	1150L to 1465L	1470L and Above

By assessing students three to five times a year with SRI, educators will have actionable data to direct individual student goals, to forecast outcomes on the Virginia SOL, and to know the intensity of intervention needed to show growth.

Used in tens of thousands of classrooms, SRI has benefited educators as a tool to screen students on a universal scale, to benchmark student progress toward expected grade-level outcomes, and to assist in intervention decisions.
