GUIDANCE REGARDING BULLYING & CIVIL RIGHTS VIOLATIONS - SUPTS MEMO #283-10
Please review Dr. Patricia Wright Supts Memo at the following link:

U.S. ED SECRETARY ARNE DUNCAN HIGHLIGHTS BEST PRACTICES OF BULLYING POLICIES—KEY EXAMPLES IN STATE LAWS ARE HIGHLIGHTED AS LEGISLATION THAT WORKS TO HELP PROTECT STUDENTS In response to requests for assistance from state and local officials across the country following a rash of bullying-related suicides, U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan, on December 16, distributed a memo to state leaders outlining key components of strong state bullying laws and policies. The technical assistance memo is intended to serve as a reference for state and local officials developing or revising anti-bullying legislation or policies.

“We need the commitment from everyone at the federal, state and local level to put an end to bullying," U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan said. "I hope that highlighting these best practices will help policymakers as they work to keep our children safe and learning.”

The memo, which was sent to all governors, chief state school officers and state education boards, is part of the Obama Administration’s commitment to prevent bullying in schools. In the memo, the Department compiled key components of existing anti-bullying laws from 29 states. The laws were divided into 11 categories, which ranged from listing examples of bullying behavior to specifying procedures for investigating incidents.

Several states are leaders in their bullying policies. For example, Florida law specifically defines prohibited conduct, and Kansas law clearly covers “cyberbullying.” Washington state regulations require school officials and employees to tell certain personnel about any bullying they are aware of, and Georgia prohibits retaliation against those who report incidents. And in Massachusetts, the state policy includes a provision to provide training to an extensive list of staff members to help them prevent, identify and respond to bullying.

In addition to the memo, education officials are preparing a comprehensive summary of state anti-bullying laws and conducting a study of how those laws are implemented in the hopes that the data could further guide states in crafting effective regulations.

“We have all been told that bullying has been going on in our schools forever. But we can stop it now,” Duncan said. “Strong anti-bullying policies instill a climate that this behavior will not be tolerated.”

ATTACHMENT: ANTI-BULLYING POLICIES: EXAMPLES OF PROVISIONS IN STATE LAWS
In response to requests for assistance by state and local officials, educators, and policymakers, we summarize below examples of key components of state anti-bullying laws. This document serves as technical assistance for those stakeholders looking to develop or revise anti-bullying legislation or policies. The Department has organized the key components into eleven categories for convenience. We include citations to state laws that illustrate the key components we identified, but we do not endorse any particular laws. Additional examples are included at the end of the document, but these citations are not intended to be comprehensive. Many other state and local laws and policies may provide helpful guidance on developing effective anti-bullying policies. As part of our technical assistance effort to disseminate useful information on this important topic, we welcome other examples of laws and policies that may be working effectively to address bullying in schools. States and local educational agencies (LEAs) should seek the guidance of state and local legal officials to ensure that the legislation is consistent with all applicable federal and state laws. The Department also plans to release a compendium of all current state laws and a study of their implementation.

The following are examples of components found in current state laws on bullying:

I. Purpose Statement

- Outlines the range of detrimental effects bullying has on students, including impacts on student learning, school safety, student engagement, and the school environment.
- Declares that any form, type, or level of bullying is unacceptable, and that every incident needs to be taken seriously by school administrators, school staff (including teachers), students, and students’ families.
- Example 1:
  - Oklahoma: Okla. Stat. Ann. Tit. 70, § 24-100.3 (2009): “The Legislature finds that bullying has a negative effect on the social environment of schools, creates a climate of fear among students, inhibits their ability to learn, and leads to other antisocial behavior. Bullying behavior has been linked to other forms of antisocial behavior, such as vandalism, shoplifting, skipping and dropping out of school, fighting, and the use of drugs and alcohol. . . . Successful programs to recognize, prevent, and effectively intervene in bullying behavior have been developed and replicated in schools across the country. These schools send the message that bullying behavior is not tolerated and, as a result, have improved safety and created a more inclusive learning environment.”

II. Statement of Scope

- Covers conduct that occurs on the school campus, at school-sponsored activities or events (regardless of the location), on school-provided transportation, or through school-owned technology or that otherwise creates a significant disruption to the school environment.
- Provides a specific definition of bullying that includes a non-exclusive list of specific behaviors that constitute bullying, and specifies that bullying includes intentional efforts to harm one or more individuals, may be direct or indirect, and is not limited to behaviors that cause physical harm, and may be verbal (including oral and written language) or non-verbal. The definition of bullying can be easily understood and interpreted by school boards, policymakers, school administrators, school staff, students, students’ families, and the community.
- Is consistent with other federal, state and local laws. (For guidance on school districts’ obligations to address bullying and harassment under federal civil rights laws, see the Dear Colleague Letter: Harassment and Bullying, issued by the Department’s Office for Civil Rights on October 26, 2010, available at http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/letters/colleague-201010.pdf.)
- Prohibited Conduct also includes:
  1. Retaliation for asserting or alleging an act of bullying.
  2. Perpetuating bullying or harassing conduct by spreading hurtful or demeaning material even if the material was created by another person (e.g., forwarding offensive e-mails or text messages).

- Examples 2:
  - Indiana: Ind. Code Ann. § 20-33-8-13.5 (b) (2010), Disciplinary Rule Requirements: “The discipline rules [related to bullying]…must apply when a student is: (1) on school grounds immediately before or during school hours, immediately after school hours, or at any other time when the school is being used by a school group; (2) off school grounds at a school activity, function, or event; (3) traveling to or from school or a school activity, function or event; or (4) using property or equipment provided by the school.”

III. Specification of Prohibited Conduct

- Provides a specific definition of bullying that includes a clear definition of cyberbullying. The definition of bullying includes a non-exclusive list of specific behaviors that constitute bullying, and specifies that bullying includes intentional efforts to harm one or more individuals, may be direct or indirect, and is not limited to behaviors that cause physical harm, and may be verbal (including oral and written language) or non-verbal. The definition of bullying can be easily understood and interpreted by school boards, policymakers, school administrators, school staff, students, students’ families, and the community.
- Is consistent with other federal, state and local laws. (For guidance on school districts’ obligations to address bullying and harassment under federal civil rights laws, see the Dear Colleague Letter: Harassment and Bullying, issued by the Department’s Office for Civil Rights on October 26, 2010, available at http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/letters/colleague-201010.pdf.)
- Prohibited Conduct also includes:
  1. Retaliation for asserting or alleging an act of bullying.
  2. Perpetuating bullying or harassing conduct by spreading hurtful or demeaning material even if the material was created by another person (e.g., forwarding offensive e-mails or text messages).

- Examples 3:
  - Florida: Fla. Stat. Ann. 1006.147(3) (2010): “(a) ‘Bullying’ means systematically and chronically inflicting physical hurt or psychological distress on one or more students and may involve: (1) Teasing; (2) Social exclusion; (3) Threat; (4) Intimidation; (5) Stalking; (6) Physical violence; (7) Theft; (8) Sexual, religious, or racial harassment; (9) Public humiliation; or (10) Destruction of property. . . . (d) The definitions of ‘bullying’ and ‘harassment’ include: (1) Retaliation against a student or school employee by another student or school employee for asserting or alleging an act of bullying or harassment...[and] (2) Perpetuation of Members of the community administrators; (iii) School volunteers; (iv) Students; and guardians of students; (ii) School employees and representatives of the following groups: (i) Parents or board shall develop the policy in consultat bullying, harassment, or intimidation
“[1] Each county board shall establish a policy prohibiting bullying, through a collaborative process with all interested stakeholders, including school administrators, staff, students, students’ families, and the community, in order to best address local conditions.

Example:

IV. Enumeration of Specific Characteristics

• Makes clear that bullying does not have to be based on any particular characteristic.

Examples:
do North Carolina: N.C. Gen. Stat. § 115C-407.15(a) (2010): “Bullying or harassing behavior includes, but is not limited to, acts reasonably perceived as being motivated by any actual or perceived differentiating characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, socioeconomic status, academic status, gender identity, physical appearance, sexual orientation, or mental, physical, developmental, or sensory disability, or by association with a person who has or is perceived to have one or more of these characteristics.”

V. Development and Implementation of LEA Policies

• Directs every LEA to develop and implement a policy prohibiting bullying, through a collaborative process with all interested stakeholders, including school administrators, staff, students, students’ families, and the community, in order to best address local conditions.

Example:
do Maryland: Md. Code Ann., Educ. § 7-424.1(c) (2010): “[1] Each county board shall establish a policy prohibiting bullying, harassment, or intimidation. . . . VOICES FROM THE FIELD: “RIDE” ON THE CUTTING EDGE OF ANTI-BULLYING EFFORTS

The Rhode Island Department of Education (RIDE) in collaboration with NBC 10 News hosted a live anti-bullying summit on Monday, November 8th. TV Anchors, Patrice Wood and Mario Hilario hosted the event. A Call 10 panel was also held in the studios to answer viewer questions about bullying.

As part of this event, RIDE developed materials and videos for the Rhode Island Department of Elementary and Secondary Education LGBTQ Anti-Bullying Forum that was held with over 325 school administrators, school staff, teachers, parents, and students in attendance. The “Voices from the Field” videos are two to three minute individual videos that feature two Rhode Island students, a principal, and a teacher sharing their bullying experiences. To view the videos, click on the individual video. They are available at http://www.thriveri.org/moreinfo/whats_new.html

Also, RIDE is collaborating with local NBC10 affiliate to continue awareness and to develop strategies in addressing bullying at a Town Hall Meeting to be aired on Dec. 2nd. A representative of RIDE will be participating in this event as a panelist.

What's going on in Rhode Island?

• RIDE is nationally recognized as the first state in the nation to develop a state-wide plan to address the needs of LGBTQ youth

• RIDE is currently developing face-to-face and online professional development opportunities for school staff to learn about LGBTQ issues;

• RIDE participates on the Rhode Island Senate Commission on Cyber bullying;

• RIDE collects and analyzes data via the School Health Profiles, the Youth Risk Behavior Survey, SurveyWorks, the Annual School Health Report, and through the discipline data reports;

• The Rhode Island Board of Regents developed and promulgated an anti-discrimination policy related to sexual orientation which is being revised/updated to include gender identity/expression and to reflect current Rhode Island general laws.

RIDE’s Coordinated School Health website, thrive, continues to provide teachers, school administrators, youth, parents and community partners updated information, and tools and resources needed for schools to address the health and safety of all students including issues of bullying. RIDE is currently developing a School Safety component to the thrive website: http://www.thriveri.org/moreinfo/whats_new.html.

FEDERAL PARTNERS IN BULLYING PREVENTION TASK FORCE INVITES PUBLIC TO SUBMIT IDEAS ON FIGHTING BULLYING—INTER-AGENCY “FINDYOUTHINFO.GOV” ACCEPTS SUBMISSION OF YOUTH TOPIC RESOURCES

The Federal Partners in Bullying Prevention Task Force recently announced that it will now accept submission of field-based practices to combat bullying for listing on its website http://www.bullyinginfo.org, a repository for bullying prevention information.

“We know that many programs are successfully addressing bullying and want to share those materials with others,” said Kevin Jennings, Assistant Deputy Secretary for the Education Department’s Office of Safe and Drug-Free Schools who also chairs the Federal Partners in Bullying Prevention Task Force. “Our goal is to create an easy, central mechanism for them to do so.”

Submissions can include a range of formats from research articles to youth-produced public service announcements. All material must be made available free of charge and hosted on either a government or non-profit website. All submissions will be reviewed before posting: inclusion does not indicate an endorsement by the Federal government.

Findyouthinfo.gov already accepts submissions of evaluated, evidence-based programs for listing in its program directory. The site will now also accept submissions for a range of youth topics, including not only bullying but also health and nutrition, positive youth development, substance use, parenting, and others.

To submit field-based material to Bullyinginfo.org and/or Findyouthinfo.gov, please visit http://www.findyouthinfo.gov/resourcesubmission.aspx.

VOICES FROM THE FIELD: TEXAS “GRASS-ROOTS” EFFORT ADDRESSES BULLYING IN SCHOOLS ACROSS REGION 12

Nancy T. Cross, Education Specialist, Texas Education Agency (TEA) Central Texas Education Service Center Region 12 recently sent us a “grass-roots” effort that is addressing bullying in schools and across the communities Region 12 serves. She said, “On September 14, 2010, our local market Channel 10 KWTX, launched a bullying prevention effort for which our Education Service Center Region 12 provided support with both technical assistance and recruitment of professional staff from local school districts and higher education from Baylor University.”

Channel KWTX began work on this project in April 2010 following the report of completed suicides associated with reported bullying incidents both in the station market area and surrounding areas.

In addition, Channel KWTX plans to host another “10 On Your Side” Call Event in early 2011.

VIRGINIA EARLY WARNING SYSTEM (VEWS)

In February 2009, the Board of Education strengthened Virginia’s accountability program by:
• Requiring high schools – beginning with the 2011-2012 school year – to meet an annual benchmark for graduation.
• Revising Virginia’s accreditation standards to create a graduation and completion index for high schools

The Virginia Early Warning System (VEWS) relies on readily available data – housed at the school – to predict which students are at risk for dropping out of high school; target resources at the school- and division-level to support students not on track to graduate while they are still in school and before they drop out; examine patterns and identify school climate issues that may contribute to disproportionate dropout rates.

In collaboration with four Virginia school divisions, the Appalachia Regional Comprehensive Center, and the National High School Center, VDOE developed VEWS to identify ninth-grade students who are at risk of not graduating from high school with a Standard or Advanced Studies diploma. VEWS provides:

- An index tool that identifies students in the ninth-grade class as on-track or off-track towards earning a Standard or Advanced Studies diploma;
- A progress monitoring tool for high school students during the school year;
- Documentation and tracking of student interventions;
- Student-level reports;
- School-level reports; and
- Division-level reports.

Virginia Early Warning Tool Interface (EWTI)
The system provides data used to finalize the VEWS application and identify students who are considered to be either:

- On-Track and have a high probability of graduating from high school with a Standard or Advanced Studies diploma; or
- Off-Track and have a high probability of dropping out or otherwise leaving high school without earning a Standard or Advanced Studies diploma.

Webinar: How to Load the VEWS Tool

HHS’ NIDA’s MONITORING THE FUTURE SURVEY SHOWS INCREASES IN ECSTASY USE AND CONTINUED HIGH LEVELS OF PRESCRIPTION DRUG ABUSE AMONG TEENS—MARINDA USE INCREASES, ESPECIALLY AMONG EIGHTH-GRADEERS

Fueled by increases in marijuana use, the rate of eighth-graders saying they have used an illicit drug in the past year jumped to 16 percent, up from last year’s 14.5 percent, with daily marijuana use up in all grades surveyed, according to the 2010 Monitoring the Future Survey (MTF). For 12th-graders, declines in cigarette use accompanied by recent increases in marijuana use have put marijuana ahead of cigarette smoking by some measures. In 2010, 21.4 percent of high school seniors used marijuana in the past 30 days, while 19.2 percent smoked cigarettes.
The survey, released December 14, also shows significant increases in use of Ecstasy. In addition, nonmedical use of prescription drugs remains high. MTF is an annual series of classroom surveys of eighth, 10th, and 12th-graders conducted by researchers at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, under a grant from the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA), part of the National Institutes of Health.

Most measures of marijuana use increased among eighth-graders, and daily marijuana use increased significantly among all three grades. The 2010 use rates were 6.1 percent of high school seniors, 3.3 percent of 10th-graders, and 1.2 percent of eighth-graders compared to 2009 rates of 5.2 percent, 2.8 percent, and 1.0 percent, respectively. "These high rates of marijuana use during the teen and pre-teen years, when the brain continues to develop, places our young people at particular risk," said NIDA Director Nora D. Volkow, M.D. "Not only does marijuana affect learning, judgment, and motor skills, but research tells us that about 1 in 6 people who start using it as adolescents become addicted."

"The increases in youth drug use reflected in the Monitoring the Future Study are disappointing," said Gil Kerlikowske, director of the White House Office of National Drug Control Policy. "Mixed messages about drug legalization, particularly marijuana, may be to blame. Such messages certainly don't help parents who are trying to prevent kids from using drugs. The Obama administration is aggressively addressing the threat of drug use and its consequences through a balanced and comprehensive drug control strategy, but we need parents and other adults who influence children as full partners in teaching young people about the risks and harms associated with drug use, including marijuana."

The MTF survey also showed a significant increase in the reported use of MDMA, or Ecstasy, with 2.4 percent of eighth-graders citing past-year use, compared to 1.3 percent in 2009. Similarly, past-year MDMA use among 10th-graders increased from 3.7 percent to 4.7 percent in 2010.

Also of concern is that the downward trend in cigarette smoking has stalled in all three grades after several years of marked improvement on most measures. Greater marketing of other forms of tobacco prompted the 2010 survey to add measures for 12th-graders' use of small cigars (23.1 percent) and of tobacco with a smoking pipe known as a hookah (17.1 percent).

Prescription drug abuse remains a major problem. Although Vicodin abuse decreased in 12th graders this year to 8 percent, down from around 9.7 percent the past four years, other indicators confirm that nonmedical use of prescription drugs remains high. For example, the use of OxyContin, another prescription opiate, stayed about the same for 12th-graders at 5.1 percent in 2010. And six of the top 10 illicit drugs abused by 12th-graders in the year prior to the survey were prescribed or purchased over the counter. The survey again found that teens generally get these prescription drugs from friends and family, whether given, bought, or stolen.

However, the survey says binge drinking continued its downward trend. Among high school seniors, 23.2 percent report having five or more drinks in a row during the past two weeks, down from 25.2 percent in 2009 and from the peak of 31.5 percent in 1998. In addition, 2010 findings showed a drop in high school seniors' past-year consumption of flavored alcoholic beverages, to 47.9 percent in 2010 from 53.4 percent in 2009. Past-year use of flavored alcohol by eighth-graders was at 21.9 percent, down from 27.9 percent in 2005.

The MTF survey also measures teen attitudes about drugs, including perceived harmfulness, perceived availability, and disapproval, all of which can predict future abuse. Related to its increased use, the perception that regular marijuana smoking is harmful decreased for 10th-graders (down from 59.5 percent in 2009 to 57.2 percent in 2010) and 12th-graders (from 52.4 percent in 2009 to 46.8 percent in 2010). Moreover, disapproval of smoking marijuana decreased significantly among eighth-graders.

"We should examine the extent to which the debate over medical marijuana and marijuana legalization for adults is affecting teens' perceptions of risk," said Dr. Volkow. "We must also find better ways to communicate to teens that marijuana use can harm their short-term performance as well as their long-term potential."

MTF is one of three major surveys sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) that provide data on substance use among youth. The others are the National Survey on Drug Use and Health and the Youth Risk Behavior Survey. The MTF Web site is: <http://monitoringthefuture.org>. The National Survey on Drug Use and Health, sponsored by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, is the primary source of statistical information on substance use in the U.S. population 12 years of age and older. More information
The Youth Risk Behavior Survey, part of HHS' Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System, is a school-based survey that collects data from students in grades 9-12. The survey includes questions on a wide variety of health-related risk behaviors, including substance abuse. More information is available at <http://www.cdc.gov/nccdphp/dash/yrbs/index.htm>.

OJJDP WITH PIRE AND FOX VALLEY TECHNICAL COLLEGE THROUGH THE UNDERAGE DRINKING ENFORCEMENT TRAINING CENTER PRESENTS “CONDUCTING COMPLIANCE CHECK OPERATIONS”—DISTANCE LEARNING COURSE

This FREE four-hour online training course provides basic guidelines and operational information on reducing sales of alcohol to underage purchasers through compliance investigations of alcohol retailers. The course presents rationales for carrying out these investigations and emphasizes the importance of reducing youth access to alcohol thereby reducing youth related crime in the community and improving the quality of life.

COURSE OUTCOMES:
Participants who complete the course will be able to:
• Understand the issues related to underage drinking and the retail availability of alcohol to underage purchasers.
• Motivate policymakers, communities, and law enforcement to place greater emphasis on alcohol compliance investigations and prevention of underage drinking.

• Implement step-by-step guidelines for carrying out alcohol compliance investigations.
• Identify barriers to compliance investigations and approaches to overcoming these barriers.
• Utilize compliance investigations efficiently and effectively to deter sales to minors and demonstrate community norms against underage drinking.

COURSE OBJECTIVE:
To train newly hired or experienced officers to utilize their existing alcohol laws or ordinances as an operational tool to prevent underage access to alcohol from commercial sources. This course is designed at an introductory level and is intended to be used as a tool to prepare attendees for subsequent on-site classroom training and experiential learning activities.
