On Monday, March 9, 2015, Goochland County Public Schools will host Virginia educators who are interested in learning about Goochland's approach to creating a balanced assessment system.

Goochland has been recognized for its assessment program - one that prioritizes individual student growth, incorporates authentic performance assessments, and strikes the right balance between measuring student learning and providing essential instructional time.

Division leaders will discuss Goochland's three-year path to balanced assessment and share their plan for meeting the state's requirements for local alternative assessments. Participants will have the opportunity to visit Goochland's schools to see first-hand the administration of the division's performance assessments, as well as the development of Goochland's Balanced Assessment Project.

A full agenda is available at www.vassonline.org.
