Objectives/Goals
- Students will identify professions in the health care industry.
- Students will identify the characteristics of effective healthcare providers.
- Students will consider health occupations and whether or not they could see themselves as a professional in the healthcare industry.
- Students will learn about their own strengths, interests, and skills and how they might apply as a healthcare professional.

Materials
- 1 – Handout – Health Career Exploration
- 2 – Computers or mobile devices with Internet access

Procedure

Step 1
- A – This lesson will likely take 3 days of class time depending on the length of your classes. Begin by telling students Over the next two days we will be researching different careers in the health industry. Then ask, What are some careers or professions you know or have heard about in the health industry? Write student responses on the board as they shout them out.
- B – After they have thought of as many as they can, put a list of many different potential health careers on the board or project on the screen using the Health Careers PowerPoint.
- C - You could also ask, What are some important attributes of healthcare professions? Again, write their ideas on the board. Show the next slide in the PowerPoint

Step 2
- A – Tell students You will pick a health profession to explore that seems interesting to you. You will research the career using the Internet and fill out the Health Careers Exploration handout as you go along. Try to have students pick as many different careers as possible because they will share their findings at the end of this lesson.
B – In a skills-based health education curriculum, you would want to have taught the skill of “accessing information, products or services” (National Health Education Standard #3) so students know how to search for credible sources. See this lesson – “Is it C.R.A.A.P.?“ for more information.

Step 3
- A – Day two will consist of time mostly spent researching a health career. Check in with students as they are working. If you want to fill more time, you could have students research more than one career.
- B – For day 3, tell students they will need to be prepared to share their findings with their classmates.

Step 4
- A – Have students share their findings with their classmates. This could be in the form of small groups, then rotating groups, or possibly having each student share out to the class (depending on time).
- B – You could have students prepare a poster summarizing their main findings and having a walking gallery of each poster.

This activity will allow you to learn about your strengths, interests and skills, and how they might apply to a future career choice in the healthcare industry.

1. Using a credible website, explore some careers that sound interesting to you. One suggestion would be to use explorehealthcareers.org. Try to find things out about each career like…

   - How the career suits your interests
   - A summary of key information about the occupation
   - A description of the tasks people do on the job
   - Working conditions
   - Earnings
   - Education and training requirements
   - A sample career path
   - Related careers to the profession

2. After browsing through several different careers, select one that you are seriously interested in pursuing. Be sure you have an understanding of the educational path required. Write down three reasons you like it (e.g. high potential earnings, comfortable working conditions, enjoy key job tasks or central aspects) and answer the remaining questions.

Health Career I Chose:

3. __________________________________________________________________________________

5. Working Conditions, Earnings, and Sample Career Path – What are typical working conditions for this career? How much money can someone typically earn on an annual basis? What is the typical career path for someone in this profession?

How does what you learned compare with your expectations? (e.g. are the working conditions or earnings different from what you expected?)
6. Characteristics and Skills Needed – What type of personal characteristics and skills must you have to work in this field?
